Composite Resin Fillings and our Office Policy

Due to the recommendation of the dentist, you have agreed to have a composite resin filling, often called a white filling. We feel it is necessary to present to you, as the patient, most insurance company's policies regarding this procedure. Unfortunately, most insurance companies will not cover these procedures. But instead will cover these procedures as an alternate benefit to the policy. The alternate benefit would only cover these procedures as an amalgam, or often called a silver filling. Due to the alternate code, we need to inform you that you will most probably be responsible for the remaining balance or the full balance of the resin filling and any deductible which may be included.

By signing below, you do understand and acknowledge this policy from the insurance company and our office.
